

Aged Lead Effect on Fibreglass

Our Aged Lead effect is one of our most popular finishes among garden designers & commercial landscapers alike. A mix of Traditional & Contemporary planters in this finish look fantastic where-ever placed.

The finish is a dark base with a mottled whitish bloom over the top, just like real oxidised Lead.

Its an integrated finish where the colour is locked into the product when manufactured, however care must be taken in handling and maintenance as the white bloom can be accidently removed if scrubbed or rubbed past something with force etc... As this is to mimic a natural aged lead finish its best to just leave alone and let nature take its course.

All Aged Lead products have a different natural appearance and will change with the weather as the outer product surface is porous & will therefore take up moisture from both ain & the air itself.
